

Recent acquisitions

The following photocopies of MSS and TSS have recently been loaned to the Russell Archives by the Humanities Research Center, University of Texas, Austin, where they were acquired as part of the Lady Ottoline Morrell papers. Many of the writings are untitled and undated, although there is a distinct difference in the handwriting between those composed c.1902 and c.1911. It is known, too, for example, from Russell's letters to Morrell, that the short "Prisons" MS (much is still lacking) must be of the later date. These letters also explain how Morrell came by the earlier fragments. In letter #37, postmarked 23 April 1911, Russell tells her that he is sending her "various unsuccessful attempts at writing, mixed up with private reflections, that I made nine years ago". It is not easy to determine which writings are of which category, though even the "unsuccessful" category may contain important biographical material for students of "The Free Man's Worship", which was written after they were.
