

Title index to A Bibliography of Bertrand Russell, vol. I: Separate Publications

by Kenneth Blackwell

THIS IS AN index of the titles of Russell's books and of those of the books he contributed to in some way. The index provides an abbreviated finding-list to all of his original book publications. The reader in possession of a book with an apparently original contribution can thus consult the index to see if it is already known to us.¹

There are four parts to Volume I of the Bibliography. Part A describes the 89 books, 37 pamphlets and 35 leaflets by Russell, or co-authored or co-edited by him. Other people's collections of his essays are included here—except for definitive or scholarly editions. Part AA describes the scholarly editions. At this time the only such editions—those based on a careful collation of all relevant texts, with the textual decisions presented and the verbal variants published with them—are those of the Collected Papers. Parts A and AA have full bibliographical descriptions.

Parts B, G and H have abbreviated descriptions. Part B concerns the books that Russell prefaced, introduced or contributed an essay to. Books containing series of his letters are included. In Part G are his blurbs published on other people's books, usually on the dust-jacket. Such puffs, as Russell called them, are often the only statement we have by him on these works, and several of them are fairly long. His publishing correspondence reveals far more than the 60 described in Separate Publications, but many were not used and others were on books impossible to locate in the dust-jacket. Volume II, Serial Publications, has a parallel section for blurbs published in periodical ads. Part H, the final part in Volume I, collects all sorts of minor offerings: quotations from conversations and interviews, extracts from letters, marginalia, reports of speeches (as distinct from speeches whose texts Russell published), and excerpts from unpublished manuscripts. Many are scrappy and not to be relied upon; others ring true. All are often our only source for the views expressed in them. Part H has a parallel section in Volume II except for interviews and speeches, which have their own sections.

Some statistics may be of interest. The number of main entry items in the five parts is 755. Many items have appeared in more than one edition or changed publisher. The sub-entries number 832.

Part	Main Entries	Sub-Entries	Total Entries	Ms. Citations	Re-prints	Cross References	Copy Locations
A Books & pamphlets	161	560	721	180	131	902	982
AA Scholarly Editions	7	1	8	1	0	248	12
B Contribut'd To Books	216	118	334	172	104	197	629
G Books with blurbs	60	36	96	66	51	14	157
H Books with Orig. Quotes	311	117	428	178	33	113	649
Totals	755	832	1,587	597	319	1,474	2,429

The figures for Volume II are not yet available, except for the fact that Russell's original periodical articles number in excess of 2,000.

¹ Bernd Frohmann started the index when he was my assistant on a grant from S.S.H.R.C.C. Sheila Turcon has helped me revise, maintain and edit it for publication. A. C. Lewis advised on the export from dBase IV to WordPerfect 5.1. Harry Ruja's enthusiasm for all such tools to access Russell's works was catching.
